In the early hours of yesterday morning, a body was found on the shores of Lake Neuchâtel. The grisly murder is made even more disturbing by the fact that the body was stripped of all of its organs. This may be connected to an alleged organ trafficking ring. An investigation has been opened.

Today, the 11th of May, yet another corpse was found in the Neuchatel Lake, this time by two Fishermen. This is the 12th body found in the last 2 years. The most disturbing thing about this particular string of bodies is that they all have organs missing. The Neuchatel Police force has informed us that there are still no leads as to how or by whom these bodies are dumped in the Neuchatel Lake. However, this whole situation is very worrisome as it hints that there might be some underground organization selling organs, or a cult performing blood sacrifices. These are, of course, some of the worst case scenarios. None of the bodies that were found were recognizable nor has the police been able to find out the time of death of the victims. The police has asked several morgues if they had any missing corpses, however not a single morgue in a 80km radius has announced a body disappearance. There are no missing persons reports filed, either. The origin of the victims is a complete mystery.

The body found today did have one major difference with the past few victims that were tentatively connected to this case. They still had remnants of a tie around their neck. Sadly, this does not help to further the investigation, as this is a very common model of tie, used by over 10'000 major companies in Switzerland alone. The police has reached out to all of the registered companies in question, asking if one of their employees had gone missing recently, but got only negative replies.

Short of going into every single major corporation in the country and digging around for employee records in the hopes that an ID picture could perhaps help identify the mangled remains of the victims. As it stands, we may be facing one of the worst serial killers in the history of the Canton of Neuchâtel, operating in complete impunity due to fact that nobody seems to be missing the victims, nor has any one of them been identified yet.

We have tried to contact a few of the major CEOs in the country, to ask them how they would handle such a thing, but none of them has gotten back to us on this. We have also attempted to interview the head of forensic investigations to know more about what has been done to the bodies. They kindly agreed to a complete interview, alone with the Neuchâtel Chief of Police.
